While the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration of policy spoke of "the final destruction of the nazi tyranly," the world waited to see what concrete steps would be taken to achieve Adolf Hitler's downfall—and whether the conference of the two Anglo-American leaders also produced some secret "joker" to be kept hidden from the axis.

The calendar, following the general outline of previous years, records only one major change and that is the extension of the Christmas holiday period to two full weeks whereas only ten days have been given in the past. This change, however, eliminates the additional holiday which is provided each year in the calendar for unexpected events, and usually given at Easter time.

Maintenance workers are now engaged in renovating the buildings in preparation for the opening of the fall term.

School officials are busy planning schedules, arranging elements of the provident of the control of the WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (P)—The directing forces of the Anglo-American effort against the axis-Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill-joined in a dramatic agreement on war and post-war aims today and the world waited to see what would be the concrete steps to achieve them.

A secret meeting somewhere in the Atlantic ocean between the American president and the British prime minister was the source of their declaration, which carried as its basic prelude to peace "the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny.'

Escretary of State Hull, at his press conference, refused to discuss possible courses of action but did remark the general statement reflected principles which had long been accepted by civilized countries before, as he put it, some nations set out on a movement to establish rule based on barbarism and savagery.

Interlarded amidst the dark dispatches from Great Britain appear frequent bright allusions to the glorious effects of the calamities upon human character. Heroes have emerged from the fiery trial. The British people, and some of the other victims of German ruthlessness, have attained a level of courage and unselfishness and endurance and brotherly democracy such as never in all their history has been seen before. Cities and homes may have been devastated, but the spirits of men and women have been refined and strengthened and ennobled.

Such is the paradox of suffering. Tribulation both reveals and transforms. The world comes to salvante were eager to follow Him all the way. In the mystery of Him all the wa

Tribulation both reveals and transforms. The world comes to salvation only by way of its calvaries. The mystery of pain has baffled the ages; and it baffles us. But we do know, from experience and from difficult circumstances. "All sun-shine makes the desert," says the Arab proverb. Suffering seems inseperable from saintliness. ood of the martyrs is the seed! the Church."

I subscribee to an information service which sweeps the world horizon of religious conditions, and some of its reports are thrilling. They tell of a new profoundity of interest on the part of Christian leaders everywhere. The fidelity and sacrifice of the churches that are now under the yoke of oppresare now under the yoke of oppression stir the reader. The spread of new tolerance and catholicity and cooperation of the long-divided major branches of Christendom give a glimpse of the new day when the Church may truly become one. In the dark valley of affliction the peoples of God are anew finding their souls. We get our word "tribulation" from the Latin "tribulum," or threshing sledge, such as is still or threshing sledge, such as is still used in the Holy Land; tribulation is a threshing out of the good grain from the husks.

A Plain Book for Plain People. A Plain Hook for Plain People.

It is the forthright fisherman Peter who writes this letter that is our Lesson text, with its clear counsel upon Christian character under trial. Unlike Paul, or Luke, he was no school-trained literary man; the hand that for years had hauled nets and cleaned fish was not habituated to the pen. He be-came one of those powerful writ-ers, like John Bunyan, whom experience had taught deeply; so he wrote simple and strongly and clearly. Out of his early provincial-ism he had been led into a shepperd's concern for the whole flock of God. It is of interest that this letter was written "to the stran-gers" whom he had never met, congers" whom he had never mes, verts of Paul scattered over Asia Minor. This simple fact is a pro-found exhortation to all Christians to develop a sympathy extending for beyond their own congregations or denominations.

Some of Paul's letters, as Peter remarks in one place are sensitive. Some of Paul's letters, as Peter remarks in one place, are tought reading. The ordinary person finds them hard to grasp, Not so with Peter's epistles. They are in plain words for plain people. Anybody can get Peter's meaning at a first reading. And he deals with the problems of everyday living. His counsel is all designed to fortify the souls of everyday folks. fy the souls of everyday folk.

Unto Death.
There was a Hitler in Peter's day, and his name was Nero, the cruel emperor of Rome. Forty-five members of the third class of flying cadets will com-plete their primary training course at the Air Activities of Texas school in Corsicana on Wednesday and will be graduated on Thursday to the basic course at Randolph Field according to an official announcement by officials of the Air Corps Training Detachment.

Christianity is a process for making men and women holy. It's assumption is that the great goal of life is the Kingdom of Heaven; a new order of society wherein good people gladly do the will of the believed sovereign God. So all-important is the objective that no price is too high to pay for its attainment—labor, sacrifice, suffering. The end repays the means. And always there is the sustaining knowledge that the disciple is a sharer of the pains of Christ, as well as a partaker of His glory. ard D. Watkins, Jr., Bunwoody, Ga.

District Judge Wayne R. Judge Howell pointed out that

LACK UNDERGROUND WATER NOT RELIEVED BY RECENT RAINS

AUSTIN, Aug. 12.—(P)—A vital lack of underground water for domestic supplies in some portions of Texas has not been alleviated by general rains in the state in past months, Chairman C. S. Areas most endangered by heavy withdrawals from deep underground sources, Clark continued, were the Houston-Galveston district, the Winter Garden region, El Paso, West Texas and the Panhandle.

"These areas," he said, "have been and, in some instances, still are taking more water from the underground stratas than nature can replace. Repeated tests of the water tables have shown they are dropping rapidly. While water underground property of the water undergrand pandonment of

Anybody with a car to trade will find it smart to see how much his car is worth in trade on a Ford this year!

In size, the Ford is the biggest car in passenger room in its price field. In comfort, it offers a soft and quiet ride that's new this year right down to a rigid new frame and long, soft springs.

Its hydraulic brakes are bigger than any other car's near its price. Its engine is the only Eight in its field. Its economy was proved again this year when it was first in its class for gas mileage in the official Gilmore-Grand Canyon Economy Run.

ATTEMPT TO BRING CIVILIAN INTO WAR GAMES FORBIDDEN

PLANS HAD BEEN ADVANCED TO USE CIVILIANS AS FIFTH COLUMNISTS THERE

By JERRY T. BAULCH WITH THE ARMY IN SOUTH-WEST ARKANAS, Aug. 14.—(P) -The army, which has been clam-oring for realism in the Arkansas the next month and a half, clamped down an emphatic "no" today on plans to bring civillans into action as fifth columnists.

This attempt at super-realism was labeled as too unreal.

Army and Lt. Gen Walter Krueger, Third Army commander, that agency, noted particularly that the civilians were not to be enlisted in any "unauthorized" fifth column operations whatsover.

Proposals to use farmers and CINFDAI CERVICES combatting parachute invasions specifically were rejected. The war department order said civic buildings were not to be invaded and city officials taken prisoners in "simulated border inicdents," as had been planned to add realism to the kotmk-almat warfare, an imaginary international intrigue preceding the actual deployment of Second and Third armies against one another in Louisiana during September. The rites were conducted by Rev. Use of civilians actually would defeat the intended realism, the war department explained, because the army would have no jurisdiction over persons taking Jackson, Angus; Mrs. N. S.
